Nearly all of the official dignitaries, state and municipal, have gone away to spend the Fourth of July in their own fashion, by the seaside, in the mountains and among the trees.

Mayor Gilroy is at Far Rockaway, where he will spend the Fourth with his family. Of course, he will come to town long enough to participate in the Migwam celebration, returning again to the Summer capital in the afternoon.

Chief Clerk John F. Carroll, of the Court of General Seasions, and Police Justice Burke are also at Far Rockaway. Bo are Dock Commissioner Andrew J. White, Public Printer Martin B. Brown and Police Justice Divver.

Congressman W. Bourke Cockran will suffer any jubilee.

Reports that the silverites have taken steps to organize for a bitter fight against the repeal of the Sherman act have led many to believe that such action by Congress is by no means certain to follow immediately upon its assembling, but the general opinion is that any filibustering on the part of the silver advocates will only result in the certain repeal of the act.

Then, too, it will be more than a month before Congress meets, and as the "object lesson" of Secretary Carlisle will be in full swing meanwhile, there is no telling what developments may arise which will render the repeal of the present law even more urgent than it has yet been deemed.

tween New York and Southampton or Havre or Bremen. One would naturally think that the steward would make some allowance for that terror to women and billous men, mal de mar, waste at table, sends the remnants of the delicacles to the steerage and intermediate tables, where it is halled with expressions of delight.

The cuisine of the first cabin of most of these steamships is as variable and expensive as that of the best of hotels. That of the intermediate is on a par with a third-class hotel in the backwoods of Wisconsin, and that of the steerage is prejudicial to good behavior, for any "hash-house" in the United States that would "set up such grub" would be looted by the hoarders; but as John Cavanagh, the oldest purser who crosses the sea, says, "What can they expect for 3,000 miles of travel and is John Cavanagh, the oldest purser who crosses the sea, says, "What can hey expect for 2,000 miles of travel and here meals a day for 220?"

As to the cost of a trip, said Chief steward Alan McLeod, of the Inman ine: "Such ships as the Etrurla, City of Rome, Malestic and the big Inman iners can carry 1,000 saloon passengers, to say nothing of the 2,000 intermediate and steerage, though some of the lines during the rush do not carry any steerage passer gers.

"If I were stocking the ship I would store away 19,000 to 12,000 pounds of fresh beef just as you see it hanging in front of butcher shops in America. Then 5,000 pounds of mutton and lamb. 1,000 pounds of corned beef, 200 smoked hams, 1,500 dressed chickens or hens, as the case may be; 3,000 pounds of fish and 600 pounds of bacon. Now we come to the delicacles. Big sacks of shocked tongues, dried beef, dried and smoked fish, salmen and halibut principally. Of the fresh fruit we take 30,000 pounds of tomatoes, pears, oranges, peaches, bananas, watermelans, plums, cherries, grapes and all other dainties which may be found in any strictly first-class hotel. New come the tinned (cannel) goods. We have enough in stock always to furnish a grocery store in a respectable sized town. Several tons of canned sardines, potted meats of all description, peaches, apricots, pears, apples. Boston baked beans—in fact, everything under the sun that is preserved in cans can be found in my storeroom. Then we come to the relishes, sauces and pickles of all descriptions, besides fresh garden roots, such as celery, radishes, &c. Thousands of pounds of caffee, tea, chocolate and cooca, together with, say, 5,000 bottles of ale, 2,000 bottles of the sure the stores.

"We can use up three carloads of potatoes, beets, parsnips, carrois, cablages, &c. Now we will add 1,000 dozen eggs, twenty barrels of sugar, two tons of butter, half a ton of lard and condensed milk enough to make a pond densed milk enough to make a pond altocked in on the trip, and there are indispensable."

Lamplighter should have an easy vic-tory in this race. Stonenell, if he goes, will probably secure second money, and Derfargilla ought to beat the others. Fourth Race.—The Atlantic Stakes, a sweep stakes of $50 each, with $1,500 added; for two ear-olds; five and a half furiongs.

Dobbins looks to be in a soft spot in this race, and, on form, he should win hands down. Declare ought t be the run-ner-up, and Riverside should not be worse than third. Fifth Race.—The Trenton Stakes, a sweepstake of $50 each, with $1,000 added, for three-year Restraint has a big pull in the weights, and this should enable him to stay the distance and win. Chattanooga looks the best of the others, and should beat Extra for the place.

Sixth Race.—A sweepstakes of $15 each, $1,000 added selling; six furlongs.

Br ghton Selections.

A great card is offered by the Brighton Beach Racing Association to-day, and rare sport should resut. The fields are filled to the limit, and quality, too, is there. The feature, of course, is the Brighton Handicap, at a mile and a sixteenth, with such good ones as Low-lander, Charade, Blitzen, Terrifler, Equity, Logan and a host of others in it The entries:

THE ETIQUETTE OF SMOKERS.

If the Cuban Code Is Authority

The requirements of etiunette, as regards the obligation of one smoker to give a light to another from his cigar, are rather dimly understood in this country, says the Pittsburg Dispatch. The man who is asked for a light usually gives it rather than take the trouble of refusing, on the same principle as paying fare for hanging to car platform, or going to a theatre to obtain a rear view of feminine headgear In Havana the traditions of Spanish formality combine with the universality formality combine with the universality of smoking to form a clear and well defined code on the subject.

The request of one smoker to another for a light must always be honored in Cuba. Your well-bred Havana smoker would as soon think of refusing another the privilege of breathing the same air with him as of refusing a light. To meet the requirements of full courtesy also the light must be given from the end of the cligar, no matter how wide the difference in rank in the cigars thus brought into contact.

To save a Concha Especiale from the pungent flavor of a Wheeling two-fer by proffering a match, as is often done here, would in Havana be regarded as a snub too refined in its significance for open resenting, but at the same time too crushing for any future amicable relations.

Some new people from the Ohio side had moved into a Kentucky town and ccupied a house not far from where Uncle Clem, an old colored man, had lived for years. Two or three weeks later Uncle Clem was making a garden for me, and I was talking to him, says a writer in the Detroit Free Press. "How do you like your neighbor, Uncle?" I asked.

He shook his head doubtfully. "What do you mean by that?" I inquired, when I saw he had no further answer.

"I 'spec dey's Ohier tackies," he said, vaguely.

"Why, I thought they seemed to be very nice people."

"Mebbe dey is 'n' mebbe dey ain't. Leastwise, dey ain't my kind."

"Why not?"

"Caze dey ain't."

"But they must have done something to make you disilke them?"

"Didn't dey come fum Ohier?" he asked, as if that settled it.

"Well, kunnel," he said, when I had cornered him, "dey insulted me."

"Not intentionally, I am sure, Uncle Clem."

"Kunnel," he said, leaning on his hoe, "I'se gwine to leave it to you. The question is: Did he take a direct line for home, or did he shape his general course so as to come out upon some familiar spot, miles, it may be, from his home, and from that point follow remembered paths? Hunters say that the latter is most frequently the case.

Suppose that in the dog's absence the old home has been burned down and his master's family have moved five miles to the right or left, but are at the same distance from the point at which he was set down. He will go back to the old spot, and there will trace the family by scent, if he traces them at all. He has no sense to inform him of the chan, ed position of the family, or of anything more than would be knows to a man under the same circumstances.

they were set free they all returned is a straight line to their home.

Again he took them over a similar route, but on the way he spun the boxes rapidly round. This time only one or two bees reached the hive, and perhaps these got back only by accèdent. While spinning around in the boxes they lost perception of the direction in which they were being carried. It is often observed that when a doreturns home by a way which he must have made out with care and on his own account, he at once throws himself upon the floor or the ground and sleep soundly for a time. This is apt to be referred to physical exhaustion, but it is more likely to be due to the fact that the animal has kept his faculties all or the alert, and has quickened his perceptions to their difficult task. All our domestic animals show wonderful power of application when their faculties are bent to the accomplishment of some cherished design.
